

Citation Elements in order:

- 1 Article author: Matthew Scult
- 2 Article title: Chemistry for Non-Dummies
- 3 Newspaper title: New York Times
- 4 Format: Online
- 5 Publication date: July 17, 2009
- 6 URL: <http://library.pressdisplay.com/pressdisplay/viewer.aspx>
- 7 Date of access: August 12, 2009

Document Example:

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying a New York Times article. The address bar (6) contains the URL: <http://www.nytimes.com/2009/07/26/education/edlife/26orgo.html>. The page header (3) includes 'The New York Times' and 'Education Life'. A navigation menu below the header lists categories: WORLD, U.S., N.Y., REGION, BUSINESS, TECHNOLOGY, SCIENCE, HEALTH, SPORTS, and POLITICS EDUCATION. The article title (2) is 'Chemistry for Non-Dummies', with the author's name (1) 'By MATTHEW SCULT' and the publication date (5) 'Published: July 17, 2009' listed below it. The article text begins with: 'Last year, I nonchalantly signed up to take second-semester organic chemistry, a k a Orgo. My friends thought I was a maso-chist. The class is reputed to be the hardest at Brown, and rumor has it that its sole purpose is to weed out pre-meds. Nobody else takes it except chemistry majors. I had come to the conclusion that I was not going to apply to medical school, and it was unnecessary for me to take the course for any other reason. Still, I figured I could always change my mind about the med school thing. And how bad could it be?'

Bibliographic Reference Citation

Bibliographic references are single-spaced and are indented after the first line:

Scult, M. Chemistry for Non-Dummies. New York Times, [Online], July 17, 2009.
<http://www.nytimes.com/2009/07/26/education/edlife/26orgo.html> (accessed August 12, 2009).

Author-Date Reference

Author-date references are placed in context and are formatted like so:

(Scult, 2009)